

European Army?

Some thoughts on military cooperation in today's complicated world.

Wake up call

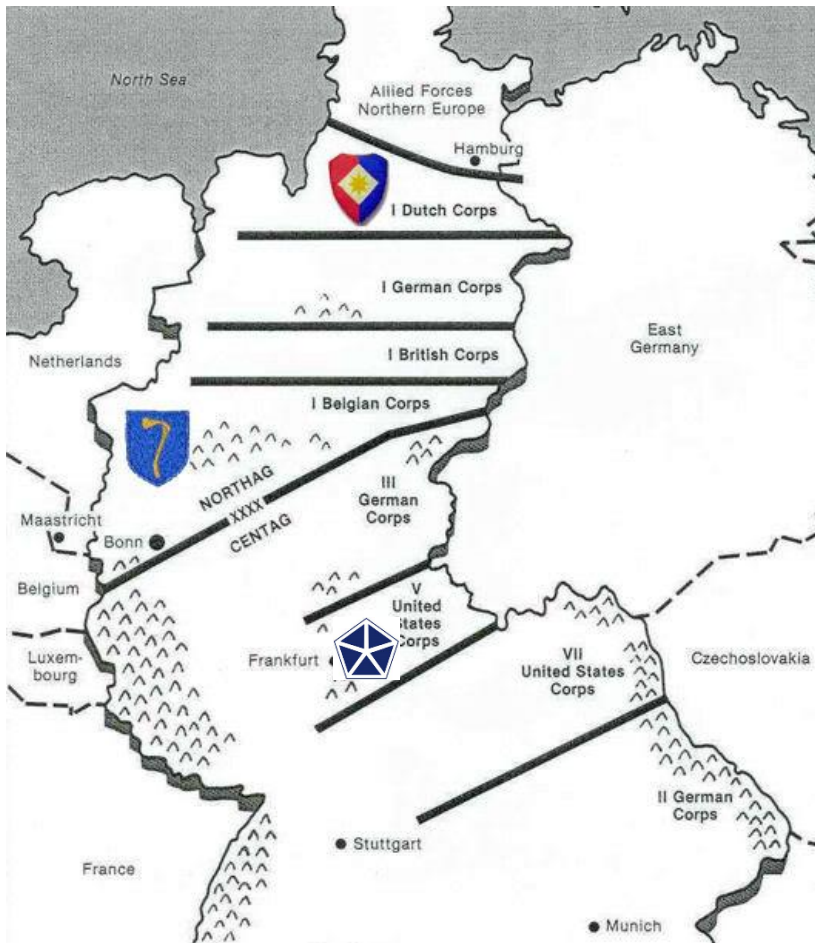

6 months after Russia illegally violated the sovereignty and territorial integrity of her neighbour Ukraine, we must agree on long-term measures to strengthen our ability to respond quickly to any threat, to reassure those allies who fear for their own country's security and to deter any Russian aggression.

ISIS isn't what you might think it is

The mainstream media wants you to believe that the recent invasion of Iraq by ISIS was a spontaneous action and that ISIS is acting independently to claim Iraq as its own. What they fail to mention are the key players, such as the CIA, who are arming, funding and training them.

Urgent action

I would like to underline that security comes at a price. And our need for security justifies paying that price. At some point, we may be forced to act militarily in order to remain secure on the European continent.

Underlines the new security challenges posed by the so-called 4th generation's warfare, a hybrid war, which is manifested as a combination of a use of irregular and conventional military methods as well as elements from cyber, economic and information warfare, and political pressure;

Messaging !

The Alliance's 28 leaders agreed at their Wales Summit on Friday (5 September 2014) to reverse the trend of declining defence budgets and raise them over the coming decade...

So what ?

Paradigm shift

- accept dependencies
- accept complexity

Deterrence through training

Messaging is key

Soldiers should stick to their own trade
