Girls and women are – still – underrepresented in science (education) and STEM careers. Why and how is this still a problem in many countries? At this event we share insights from the European Bridges Project, and invite you to walk along with us in a social design experiment in which we collaboratively search for new answers under the motto 'From awareness to Action!'

Lunch and travel expenses are on us. We offer you an inspiring and international event in which we share and multiply ideas in a group of people who all – in their own and unique way – have been involved in the topic of gender equity and social safety in science and STEM.
